○ Dr Kaley Crawford-Flett	From 2015 to 2016, I was seconded to, and from 2016 to 2020 was employed by, the University of Canterbury Quake Centre (UCQC). The UCQC was an industry-funded research centre, where I led the Earth Structures Research Programme. During this period, UCQC received funding from more than twenty industry and government partners, including hydropower generators. UCQC funders included the project applicant, Meridian Energy Limited, and an interested party, Genesis Energy Limited. Representatives from all four hydropower generators funding the Earth Structures Research Programme, including Meridian and Genesis, were members of the programme’s five-person industry steering committee. All research activities and outputs were reported to and overseen by this committee. The UCQC ceased operation in 2020. I no longer have any professional or financial relationship with the University of Canterbury, or with Meridian Energy Limited or Genesis Energy Limited as former funders of the UCQC.
