At the direction of the Panel, the concurrent hearings will proceed according to the following basic programme:

Consistent with the approach used successfully over the previous two sitting days, each topic will begin with the identification of the key issues on the whiteboard. The Panel will then work through those issues in turn. For each issue, the relevant experts will first provide brief statements, after which the Panel may ask questions and cross-examination may occur where permitted. The process is intended to allow for dynamic exchanges between the Panel, experts and counsel as the issues are worked through.
